The Great Crimean War 1853

The Crimean War was a military conflict fought from October 1853 to February 1856 in which Russia lost to an alliance made up of the Ottoman Empire, the United Kingdom, Sardinia and France. The immediate cause of the war involved the rights of Christian minorities in the Holy Land, which was a part of the Ottoman Empire.

The Crimean War was short by Napoleonic or 20th-century standards, but not by those of the 19th century, excepting the American Civil War which was atypically long. The hostilities consumed only 31 months, dating from Russia's occupation of Turkish territory (July 1853) until the armistice (January 1856).
