Yesterday Will Make You Cry
First published in reduced and bowdlerized form in 1952 as Cast the First Stone, Yesterday Will Make You Cry was Chester Himes's first, most powerful, and autobiographical novel. This Old School Books editon presents it for the first time precisely as Himes wrote it, a sardonic masterpiece of debasement and transfiguration in an American penitentiary and one of his most enduring literary achievements.

Yesterday Will Make You Cry is the first Old School hardback. Featuring a very personal introduction by Melvin Van Peebles, the volume is based on the manuscript in Yale University's Beinecke Library. Unfortunately, the scanty "Editors' Note" by Gerald and Blumenfeld offers not a hint about their editorial methodology.

Yesterday Will Make You Cry is the first novel by Chester Himes. This is the complete, unabridged version of Cast The First Stone. This novel is about a white convict by the name of Jimmy Monroe and his time in prison. From reading the introduction of the book, I gather that this book was cut and changed because of the controversial nature of the book.
